

2026 SUBSTANCE USE PREVENTION SUMMIT

Empowering Schools, Supporting Students

Join us for a powerful day of professional development designed for school practitioners and district support staff who are on the front lines of student wellness. The Substance Use Prevention Summit brings together leading experts from the Riverside University Health System (RUHS) and the Stanford Medicine REACH Lab for an in-depth exploration of current trends, critical resources, and collaborative solutions in substance abuse prevention and mental health support.

This half-day event will provide actionable strategies, access to vital tools, and direct insight from law enforcement and mental health professionals—all focused on building stronger, safer learning environments.

Let's work together to inform, empower, and uplift our school communities.
